To whom it may concern.

I have had the pleasure of knowing Lexie Peattie for the past four years in the capacity of school teacher, and more importantly, as her head of year for the past three years. Although I am able to comment on her academic and personal credentials, I have taken the time to speak with her teachers so that I can provide a brief but accurate reference that does her justice.

Lexie is a self-motivated, diligent, well-behaved and able student. Her work ethic, particularly during times of assessment, is admirable, as is her quiet determination to achieve grades that exceed her already challenging academic targets. Lexie has excellent organisational skills and can work completely independently, with admirable attention to detail. She is also honest and pragmatic, prepared to admit when she needs help and support to complete more challenging work, which she always does with a positive attitude.

Aside from her academic endeavours, Lexie is a personable young lady, who has excellent leadership skills, notably in a sporting environment. Lexie has captained both the junior and senior girls football teams at The Gregg, setting a superb example to her team mates. Her leadership made a significant contribution to the team's performances which resulted in two cup semi-finals in the national ISFA Cup and ISFA Shield competitions. This is a huge achievement for such a small school and I have no doubt it has had a great deal to do with Lexie's leadership and ability.

As a house captain and sports captain, Lexie has excelled when given tasks by her teachers centred around motivating and organizing younger students, and sometimes her peers, for sporting events, such as whole school sports day. In this type of role, Lexie shows great initiative, kindness and consideration to others, managing to motivate and control situations in a positive manner for the benefit of staff and students alike.

As the years have passed, Lexie has matured significantly, and she now possesses an adult attitude towards commitment and social contribution. The combination of her academic and pastoral abilities is strong, and I have no hesitation in recommending her for a place at any sporting centre of further education. I believe she has all of the assets necessary to make a success of such a prestigious academic placement. If you require any further information, please do not hesitate to contact me using the e-mail address below.
