

GRAVENEY SCHOOL

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to offer my strong support for Ismey's application for a sports scholarship. I am the KS3 Mathematics Co-ordinator at Graveney School and have been Ismey's form tutor for four years and her Maths teacher for two years. Having both an academic and pastoral role allowed me to get to know Ismey well as both a learner and individual.

Ismey studied her GCSEs and achieved exceptional final grades, exceeding targets through her outstanding commitment and work ethic. Her success was driven by consistent effort, independence and resilience rather than ability alone. In Maths, Ismey demonstrated strong problem solving skills and made significant progress, performing very strongly in comparison with her peers. These skills were evident throughout all her studies and subjects. In recognition of this, she was awarded a special prize in Year 11 for hard work and exceptional achievement, selected from a cohort of approximately 280 students.

Ismey was consistently punctual, well prepared and highly reliable with deadlines. She regularly completed additional work outside of lessons without prompting and organised her independent study effectively. Ismey was always willing to support others, helping peers both in and out of class. These behaviours reflect her maturity, confidence and genuine engagement with learning.

As her form tutor, I observed Ismey being a kind, inclusive and dependable student who had positive rapport with both peers and staff members. Through the 4 years, Ismey successfully balanced her academic study with extra-curricular activities. She participated in clubs after school, including football and was involved in two sports tours which took place during the school holidays. During these tours to Barcelona and Amsterdam, Ismey collaborated and played within mixed year-group teams where she established both strong leadership and excellent team work.

Ismey also successfully applied to be a Wimbledon ball girl, a highly competitive process requiring training, professionalism and excellent time management. Her success in securing and completing this role is a clear reflection of her dedication, organisation and ability to perform reliably under pressure.

In my experience, Ismey is an exceptional student with a strong work ethic, excellent character and the maturity required to succeed in a demanding academic and athletic environment. I recommend her without reservation and am confident she would be a credit to your institution.

Please do not hesitate to contact me should you require any further information.
